Death of Hon. Lewis Meacham.

Again it becomes our duty to announce the death of a well-known and universally esteemed citizen of Addison County. Hon. Lewis Meacham of New Haven, who had been a resident of that town since 1849, died at Chicago on Tuesday, the 16th inst. His health had been failing for the past two years, and he had expressed deep solicitude about the matter frequently. Accompanied by Mrs. Meacham, he went West, a few weeks since, at the solicitation of friends, who hoped that a change of air and scenery would prove invigorating. It is worthy of remark that Mr. Meacham expressed doubts of ever returning home alive when he started on his Western tour. He was taken with paralysis about the 9th inst., and although everything that affection could suggest or medical skill accomplish was done, he gradually sank in death, fully conscious of his condition and resigned to the dispensations of Providence. The funeral was held at the Congregational church, New Haven, last Sabbath, and was attended by a very large concourse of relatives and friends from this and adjoining counties, who feel deeply the loss which the home circle, society and the church have been called upon to mourn. Remarks on the occasion were made by Rev. Mr. Hurlbut, who was too much overcome to do justice to himself or the good man whose death he mourned. His remains were deposited in a quiet, beautiful spot—selected by him—beneath the sighing pines of the village cemetery. Thus has passed from among us a man stamped by his Creator as one of nature's noblemen; whose example of unostentatious liberality endeared him to all. His life and example will ever linger like a sweet incense in the memory of those who daily met him in the walks of life.

Mr. Meacham was born in Rutland in 1807, and was a member of the Congregational Church in that town; he came to New Haven in 1846. Just previous to his death he was about to join by letter the church with which he has been associated for more than twenty years. He was a gentleman calculated to inspire warm personal friendships. Ever held in high esteem by his fellow-citizens, he was frequently called to fill positions of public responsibility. In 1844 and 1845 he was a member of the State Senate. He was the colleague in that body of Hon. M. O. Porter of Cornwall. Since 1860 he has been a Director in the Vergennes Bank. He was a man of pure and unselfish purposes, and his counsel was always listened to with respect. Last summer Mr. M. made the tour of England, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy; was present and took a deep interest in the Paris exposition. Mr. M. was a brother of the late Hon. Jas. Meacham, M. C.—Vermont.

Unrequited Love.

The editor of the Eureka Union relates as follows how he once fell in love and got the mither:

"We were never, kind reader, 'desperately in love' but once, and that was with a red—no, auburn haired girl with a freckled complexion, and had but few pretensions to beauty; but then she had such really beautiful eyes—deep, liquid orbs, through which her soul in moments of tenderness looked out with a passionate fervor, and joyous mirth dashed and sparkled with the light of a thousand—dew drops—diamonds we were going to say, but then we never saw a thousand diamonds.

"Her name was Laura—which when breathed softly by a very soft lover, is a very sweet name—and her clear ringing laugh fell all around you like a shower of silver bells. Moreover, she wore a dark wine colored dress, trimmed with blue velvet and black fringe, with a neat little white collar of fine lace, which is one of the prettiest of dresses, and has the effect to make a very plain girl look absolutely charming. She never perforated her ears to hang thereby a pendulum of brass and glass; and the only ornament on the little white hand, which needed none, was a plain gold ring, sacred to the memory of a maiden promise.

"Well, one evening—it was moonlight in the summer time—we sat alone on the porch by the cottage door; holding that little white hand in a gentle pressure; one arm had stolen around her waist, and a silent song of joy like the 'music of the night' was in our soul. Our lips met in a sweet, delicious kiss, and beading softly to her ear we whispered a tale of passionate devotion—we proposed, and—the little red headed cuss refused us!"

"The American Organs manufactured by S. D. & H. W. Smith, of Boston, Mass., are remarkably good and effective instruments. Their quality of tone is peculiar and most admirable, they have great power when played full, and possesses a swell apparatus of more than ordinary excellence, by means of which a fine crescendo or diminuendo is obtained, and they also respond instantly to the touch. Choir leaders, societies, or musical students, who wish to procure something very satisfactory in the way of reed Organs, will certainly do well to examine these superb instruments—Providence Journal.
